“Healthcare Leadership in Addressing Social Determinants of Health”

The World Health Organization defines social determinants as “the conditions in which people are born, grow, work, live, and age, and the wider set of forces and systems shaping the conditions of daily life.” Thought leaders within the healthcare community recognize that these social determinants affect 60% or more of the health outcomes of both patients and health care employees. Join us to explore how leading healthcare organizations are creating partnerships within their organizations and the communities they serve to address this urgent issue.
